SHARE is celebrating its 48th anniversary as a survivor-led organization that provides free outreach, support, and education to those affected by breast, metastatic breast, ovarian, uterine and cervical cancer. Each year, SHARE reaches more than 350,000 women and their loved ones with its in-person and online programs. Proceeds from this event will be used to support SHARE's outreach efforts to more than 30,000 New Yorkers, and provide them with information about risk factors and symptoms, as well as screening and treatment options. SHARE's outreach efforts include programs targeting low-income and medically underserved Black, Latina and Chinese-speaking women in neighborhoods throughout New York City through partnerships with food pantries, shelters, senior centers, and community organizations. SHARE's outreach efforts also reach into the workplace through the Pink & Teal program, which provides employees with life-saving information about women's cancer from the perspectives of survivors.
